ENTRANCE

The first Nowell

1 The first Nowell, the angel did say,
Was to certain poor shepherds
in fields as they lay:
In fields where they lay keeping their sheep,
On a cold winter's night that was so deep:

✠ *Nowell, Nowell, Nowell, Nowell,
Born is the King of Israel.*

2 They looked up and saw a star
Shining in the east, beyond them far,
And to the earth it gave great light,
And so it continued both day and night. ✠

3 And by the light of that same star
Three wise men came from country far;
To seek for a king was their intent,
And to follow the star wherever it went. ✠

4 This star drew nigh to the northwest,
O'er Bethlehem it took its rest;
And there it did both stop and stay,
Right over the place where Jesus lay. ✠

5 Then entered in those wise men three,
Full rev'rently upon their knee,
And offered there, in his presence,
Their gold and myrrh
and frankincense. ✠

6 Then let us all with one accord
Sing praises to our heav'nly Lord;
Who with the Father we adore
And Spirit blest for evermore. ✠

I believe in one God,
the Father almighty,
maker of heaven and earth,
of all things visible and invisible.

I believe in one Lord Jesus Christ,
the Only Begotten Son of God,
born of the Father before all ages.
God from God, Light from Light,
true God from true God,
begotten, not made, consubstantial with the Father;
through him all things were made.
For us men and for our salvation
he came down from heaven,

ALL BOW

and by the the Holy Spirit was incarnate of the Virgin Mary,
and became man.

ALL STAND UPRIGHT

For our sake he was crucified under Pontius Pilate,
he suffered death and was buried,

and is seated at the right hand of the Father.
He will come again in glory
to judge the living and the dead
and his kingdom will have no end.

Joy and Hope in Christ: Vatican II

Part 1 in a series

January 8, 2012

This year, 2012, marks the fiftieth anniversary of the opening of the Second Vatican Council, which began on October 11, 1962, and closed on December 8, 1965. Throughout the year, we'll mark this milestone anniversary by remembering the Council, and exploring its teachings through bulletin inserts, lectures, and a variety of special events. This first in a series of bulletin inserts answers some basic questions.

What is a Council?

The word “council” comes from the Latin concilium, which means “gathering” or “assembly.” In the Church, a council is a gathering of leaders to address areas of concern in teaching or governance.

The first council, called the “Council of Jerusalem,” is described in the Acts of the Apostles. “No little dissension and debate” had arisen because of the question of what to do about Gentile believers (15:2). Some argued that it was not enough to be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ, but that converts must also be circumcised and thus bound to observe the entire Mosaic Law. But others—Paul among them—argued that baptism in Christ was enough. In order to resolve the issue, Paul and Barnabas went up to Jerusalem, and “the apostles and the presbyters met together to see about this matter” (15:6). After much prayer and debate, they came to an agreement that these new converts did not need to be bound to the Mosaic Law. Together, they wrote a letter proclaiming this decision, which was read to all the churches. They spoke with great authority: “It is the decision of the holy Spirit and of us,” the Apostles wrote, “not to place on you any burden beyond these necessities” (15:28; emphasis added). Their confidence that the Spirit speaks when the Church gathers in solemn Council remains today. “The infallibility promised to the Church is also present in the body of bishops when, together with Peter’s successor, they exercise the supreme Magisterium, above all in an Ecumenical Council” (Catechism, 891).

What is an ecumenical Council?

When we use the word “ecumenical” in regards to Church matters, we usually think of a gathering of Christians of various denominations. But when we speak of a church council, “ecumenical” means “universal.” An “ecumenical” Council is one to which all the bishops of the world are summoned. (The word “ecumenical” comes from a Greek root which basically means “the whole house”!) While there have been many Church councils through the centuries, there have been only 21 ecumenical Councils.

What do Councils do?

Just as in the Acts of the Apostles, Councils gather to settle disputes and to reform the Church in areas of teaching and of discipline. While we may not have heard of many of the Councils in Church history (we'll learn more about them in the next issue), we experience their fruits every day as we live out our faith. The first councils of Nicaea and Constantinople rejected the heresy of Arianism and wrote the Creed we recite every Sunday. The Second Council of Nicaea defended the use of Christian images. The Council of Trent published the first catechism and reformed the liturgy. The First Vatican Council defined the dogma of papal infallibility.

Why is the Second Vatican Council called Vatican II?

A Council is traditionally named after the city where it took place. No fewer than five councils are called “Lateran” because they took place at the Lateran Basilica, which until the 14th century was the official residence of the Pope. The most recent Council was called “Vatican” because it took place at St. Peter’s in the Vatican, and it was called “Second” or “II” because it was the second ecumenical Council to take place there.

What was the point of Vatican II?

Most of the Church’s 21 ecumenical councils were called at times of crisis, when heresies or scandals were shaking the Church. Vatican II was not like that. Instead, Pope John XXIII convoked the Council because the Church needed “aggiornamento,” updating, if it was to respond effectively to the unprecedented challenges of modern times. The Council brought the bishops of the world together to talk about everything from the liturgy and the Scriptures to modern media. “This is the greatest concern of the Ecumenical Council,” said Pope John XXIII in his opening address on October 11, 1962: “the sacred deposit of Christian doctrine should be guarded and more efficaciously taught.... Our duty is not only to guard this precious treasure, as if we were concerned only with antiquity, but also to dedicate ourselves whole-heartedly and fearlessly to the task that our era demands of us.”

The wisdom of the Council—the wisdom of the Church—was poured out in sixteen documents and, now, in fifty years of lived experience, the fruits of the Council. As we explore the documents and their ongoing legacy during the coming year, we will realize the truth of Cardinal Shehan’s words a few weeks after the closing of the Council: “the Council is over; the Council has just begun.”

Getting to know Good Pope John

Later this year, thanks to some generous parishioners, a permanent shrine to Blessed John XXIII, the Pope who called the Second Vatican Council, will be established in the north aisle of the Cathedral. Throughout the year, keep an eye on this box in the bulletin to learn more about this great saint of modern times.

Blessed Pope John XXIII was born Angelo Roncalli on November 25, 1881, in Sotto il Monte, a village of 1200 inhabitants at the foot of the Alps. The Roncallis had lived there since 1429. The house where Angelo was born was called the "palazzo" but it was not much like a palace: the large family shared the ground floor with their cows. "We were poor but happy with our lot and confident in the help of Providence.... When a beggar appeared at the door of our kitchen, there was always room for him, and my mother would hasten to seat this stranger alongside us."
