CREED

I believe in one God, the Father almighty,
maker of heaven and earth,
of all things visible and invisible.
I believe in one Lord Jesus Christ,
the Only Begotten Son of God,
born of the Father before all ages.
God from God, Light from Light,
true God from true God,
begotten, not made,
consubstantial with the Father;
through him all things were made.
For us men and for our salvation
he came down from heaven,

All BOW

and by the Holy Spirit
was incarnate of the Virgin Mary,
and became man.

All STAND UPRIGHT

For our sake he was crucified
under Pontius Pilate,
he suffered death and was buried,

and rose again on the third day
in accordance with the Scriptures.
He ascended into heaven
and is seated at the right hand of the Father.
He will come again in glory
to judge the living and the dead
and his kingdom will have no end.
I believe in the Holy Spirit,
the Lord, the giver of life,
who proceeds from the Father and the Son,
who with the Father and the Son
is adored and glorified,
who has spoken through the prophets.
I believe in one, holy, catholic
and apostolic Church.
I confess one Baptism
for the forgiveness of sins
and I look forward to the resurrection
of the dead
and the life of the world to come. Amen.

PART 18: CHRISTMAS CARD FROM CAMP MINIDOKA

9 NOVEMBER 2014

The attack on Pearl Harbor on December 7, 1941 had a devastating impact on the Japanese community in the United States. Long-simmering prejudice erupted in acts of vandalism and violence. Fears of spies or agents for the Japanese government prompted the immediate freezing of the financial assets of all the Japanese in Seattle, turning their lives upside-down.

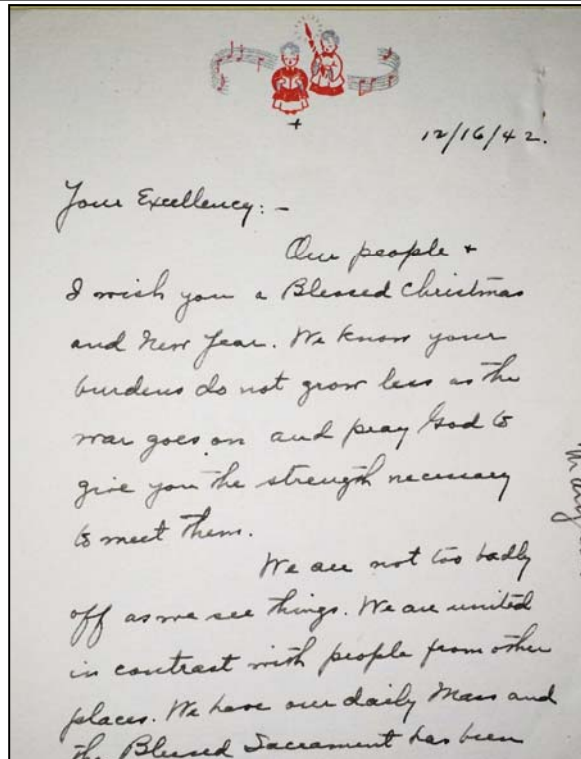

Seattle's Japanese community found a staunch supporter in Bishop Gerald Shaughnessy. In a pastoral letter read in every church in the diocese on December 14, 1941, the bishop called for a whole-hearted support of the war effort—and of people of Japanese descent: “Our Catholic heritage especially inculcates upon us in these momentous hours that we embrace our fellow American citizens of Japanese extraction in a special bond of charity.” His plea for tolerance earned him the derogatory epithet of “the goat-bearded bishop of Seattle” from Time magazine.

At Queen of Martyrs in Seattle, Japanese Catholic families found themselves unable to pay tuition or even buy groceries. Father Leo Tibesar, MM, their pastor, acted immediately. He suspended all tuition payments so that all the children could continue attending school. He also began collecting and distributing food to needy families.

As the threat of internment became a reality, Father Tibesar advocated for “his” families with many governmental agencies, including the FBI. However, in May, 1942, he learned that several hundred parishioners would be temporarily interned at Camp Harmony in Puyallup. The thriving school of Our Lady of the Martyrs was reduced to a handful of students. Father Tibesar made the momentous decision to close the school, and go to the camp with his parishioners.

At Camp Harmony, Father Tibesar immediately re-established the rhythms of parish life, from daily Mass and weekly Benediction to meetings of sodalities. The entire community was deeply touched when Bishop Shaughnessy came to Camp Harmony to celebrate Confirmation.

Three months later, the people—with their priest—were moved to what was supposed to be a temporary relocation center in Idaho, but which ended up being their home for the next three years. On August 24, 1942, Father Tibesar sent Bishop Shaughnessy the first of many letters from Camp

A 1942 Christmas card sent to Bishop Gerald Shaughnessy by Father Leo Tibesar, MM from Camp Minidoka in Twin Falls, Idaho. Courtesy of the Archives of the Catholic Archdiocese of Seattle.

Minidoka: “The location of the Camp is very good, land & water abundant & dust too. We’ll swallow a lot of the latter before this adventure is over.” Soon, the Legion of Mary and other parish groups were as active as ever—three choirs alternated in providing music for Sunday Masses! Father Tibesar worked hard to build a friendly relationship with the leadership of the Camp. “Officially I do not exist,” he wrote. “I am watching developments and exerting what pressure I can privately to obtain a modicum of that religious freedom we have in such quantities to export to all the nations of the earth.”

On December 2, he wrote: “Wish you could visit us sometime to get a picture of the place yourself. I’ve never been so completely lonely in my life. My room is just off the desert and the coyotes howl a good night just a stone’s throw from me.... Kindly keep me in prayer. I’d love to get away for a bit of rest—haven’t had a let-up since war broke out.”

In spite of everything, the community kept the faith and stuck together. On December 16, 1942, they sent Bishop Shaughnessy a Christmas letter. “We are not too badly off as we see things. We are united in contrast with people from other places. We have our daily Mass and the Blessed Sacrament has been reserved here too since Dec. 8th. What we miss most is our school.”

Father Tibesar remained at Camp Harmony until the end of the war. But the community was changing. Nearly fifty of the young men of Queen of Martyrs joined the Army, and five of them were killed on the European front. Others were scattered to various parts of the country, wherever they could find work.

In 1944, Father Blanchard of St. Edward’s Seminary wrote to thank Father Tibesar for all he had done. Father Tibesar responded that what he had done should be considered “a matter of ordinary duty whose responsibility none of us may shirk,” adding, “our democracy must be universal or it becomes a sad mockery.”
