We are also able to offer a wide range of services to needy people living in the central district of our city.*

MASS FOR PEACE AND JUSTICE On Saturday, January 17 at 11:00am, as the nation remembers Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr., all are invited to join in a Mass for Peace and Justice in the Cathedral, with Bishop Elizondo and members of the African American Catholic community from across the Archdiocese.

PLACE OF LIGHT, PLACE OF WELCOME CAMPAIGN

You may have read in the recent issue of In Your Midst about a new capital campaign to provide exterior lighting which will make our beloved Cathedral as beautiful and safe by night as by day. This $1 million campaign will also greatly improve accessibility to the Cathedral and provide improved signage around the Cathedral campus for visitors and regulars alike. If you would like to learn more about Father Ryan's vision for this campaign, meet the artist and architect, ask questions, and consider making a donation, you are invited to an information session, Thursday, January 22, at 6:30pm in the Holy Names Room, Pastoral Outreach Center. An RSVP is required. Literature about the campaign is also available in the Cathedral Bookstore and in the kiosk in the Cathedral's west vestibule. Information, Maria Laughlin, Director of Development, 206-382-4284 or e-mail mلاغlin@stjames-cathedral.org.

SOCIETY OF ST VINCENT DE PAUL In the 1830s, a small group of young men studying at the Sorbonne in Paris started the organization that became the Society of St Vincent de Paul (SVdP), drawing inspiration from St Vincent de Paul, a 17th century French priest who worked tirelessly to help the poor. Today, SVdP welcomes men and women of all ages who feel called to help our neighbors in need. We especially invite young adults to continue a 180-year tradition of joining this grace-filled ministry. Information, Barb Schmidt, 206-938-8696 or barbaralschmidt@comcast.net.

Holy Things, Holy People

Exploring Catholic history in the Northwest through treasures from the past

PART 21: SEDES SAPIENTIAE STATUE FROM ST. EDWARD'S SEMINARY

11 JANUARY 2015

Bishop O'Dea oversaw the building of dozens of Catholic institutions--new parishes, schools, and hospitals, not to mention a new Cathedral. But as he neared the end of his life, he had a dream which even for this building bishop seemed unlikely to be realized: a seminary for Seattle.

The dream seemed more unlikely than ever following the stock market crash of 1929. But even as the nation and the world tumbled into the depths of the Great Depression, Bishop O'Dea's dream somehow came true: the cornerstone for St. Edward's Seminary was laid in 1930, and the work was completed a year later. Bishop O'Dea was personally involved in every aspect of the project, from choosing the architect to selecting the Scripture passages to be inscribed above the entrances. With the help of his Chancellor, Msgr. Theodore Ryan, he arranged for the seminary to be staffed by the Sulpician Fathers who had prepared both of them for priesthood in Montreal.

In those days, seminary training could last up to twelve years. Students could enter "minor seminary" as young as 13 or 14, as first-year high school students. After six years of study, encompassing the equivalent of four years of high school and two of college, they would move into "major seminary" for six more years of philosophy and theology studies.

Entering seminary was entering a whole new way of life. The 1917 Code of Canon Law defined the purpose of minor seminaries as "to protect from the contagion of the world, to train in piety.... and to foster... the seed of a divine vocation." In keeping with this mission, St. Edward's was a world unto itself. Located in Kenmore, on Lake Washington, it was a boarding school--no day students were permitted. Life followed a strict regimen. Each hour of the day was accounted for, with Mass (not once but twice each day), meals, classes, recreation, and study hours all carried out according to a detailed horarium. Interactions between students were also subject to codes of conduct: major seminarians were not to speak with minor seminarians, and vice versa. Students were allowed to talk on the first floor but not on the upper floors of the seminary. Roommates--sometimes crowded three to a room--were not supposed to talk to each other!

Meals (prepared by a group of semi-cloistered religious, the Little Daughters of St. Joseph) had their own regimen. Each seminarian had an assigned seat according to his grade level. The main course would begin with the upperclassmen, and make its way down to the lowly freshmen, who had to hope there was something left in the dish! (Fortunately, the dessert plate started at the bottom of the table.) When a special guest came, students could chat with each other, but many meals were taken in silence, while a designated student stood at a podium and read aloud. The reading usually began with a Scripture passage and ended with the saints of the day from the Roman Martyrology. In between, the reading material varied--it might be the adventures of Shackleton one week, history or a spiritual writer the next.

This statue (a smaller version of the marble statue that stands in the Cathedral courtyard) is from one of the student rooms at St. Edward's Seminary. The damage to her crown was sustained in an earthquake in 1965. Courtesy of Father David Brant. Right: Father Ryan with his dad on the day he left home for seminary—at the tender age of fourteen!

Family visits were limited to the third Sunday of each month. Women were not allowed above the first floor of the building, which meant that anxious mothers could not check on the state of their son's room or his wardrobe. Families often spent the visiting hours sitting in the car where they could have some private conversation!

For all its severity, there was room for fun at St. Edward's as well. Sports were especially important and the seminary had its own pool and athletic fields. Father David Brant, at 6' 4", was immediately approached by the priest in charge of athletics about joining the basketball team, but he played touch football instead. Music was also a big part of life at St. Edward's. There was a band, an orchestra, and a choir of some note—in fact, for many years, the seminary choir was bussed to the Cathedral to provide music for the Holy Week liturgies. There were also plays and musicals, from Macbeth to Oklahoma, complete with scenery and costumes—and with all the roles played, of course, by seminarians.

By 1957, St. Edward's was bursting at the seams and a new seminary, St. Thomas, was built nearby. From that point on, St. Edward's was strictly a minor seminary, and students moved to St. Thomas for their major seminary studies. But dramatic changes lay ahead. In the 1960s and 1970s, attendance began to decline, and the seminaries struggled to keep pace with Church renewal. Both St. Thomas and St. Edward's closed in the late 1970s. St. Thomas Seminary is now home to Bastyr University, and St. Edward's is a state park. The magnificent buildings still stand and are well worth a visit—they are an important part of the history of the Catholic Church in the Pacific Northwest.

Centering Prayer

Monday evenings, January 26, February 2, 9, 16
7:00pm, Pastoral Outreach Center

The heart and soul of Centering Prayer is consenting to the presence and action of God in our lives. It is not meant to replace other kinds of prayer; rather, it casts a new light and depth of meaning on them. It is both a relationship with God and a discipline to foster that relationship. This four-session experience is meant to open our awareness of God whom we know by faith is within us, closer than breathing, closer than thinking, closer than choosing, by centering on the Divine Presence within us.

Facilitators: Sister Joyce Cox, BVM, and Dr. Rebecca C. Cortes.
