ST. JAMES CATHEDRAL
The Sixth Sunday of Easter

May 25, 2014

May 25, 2014

Dear Friends,

St. James Cathedral and O'Dea High School have a very strong relationship, one that goes back to the very beginning of the school. Did you know that the Cathedral actually built O'Dea? It's true.

Under the leadership of Monsignor James G. Stafford, Pastor of St. James Cathedral from 1919-1935, the Cathedral School experienced phenomenal growth. Not only did Monsignor Stafford offer free tuition and free books, he arranged for three daily busses so that children of outlying districts could enjoy the benefit of a Catholic education. By 1923 there were more than 600 students and the school was bursting at the seams.

O'Dea Baseball Team, 1924

But this wasn't enough for Monsignor Stafford or for the Cathedral parishioners. Recognizing the great need for a Catholic boys' high school in the area, he purchased property on the block east of the Cathedral. Eight houses were torn down to make way for the high school, while two houses became residences for the Holy Names Sisters, who taught at the Cathedral School, and the Irish Christian Brothers, who were invited to undertake the management of the new O'Dea High School.

The parish undertook these projects with extraordinary vision and generosity. As the Cathedral's 1929 Yearbook reported: "With the determination that this great parish should offer our young men an institution of learning equal to anything in the country, he planned a structure of outstanding beauty and usefulness. He did this in spite of the burden of over a quarter of a million dollars which the whole undertaking would place upon him and upon his people." The new high school opened in September, 1923, and the building was dedicated March 16, 1924 by Bishop O'Dea. After a ceremony in the Cathedral, a procession of prelates, priests, altar boys, students, and teachers made their way to the school. "There, his Lordship blessed the portals and rooms. The public was then invited to inspect the structure" (1929 Yearbook).

After its first year, the Christian Brothers reported: "In the domain of athletics, which at present is considered a very important part of the American school system, the name of O'Dea is becoming favorably known. We were fortunate in securing the services of Mr. A. Schuss, captain of the University of Washington basketball team of 1927. Under his direction, our football and basketball teams have met with a good measure of success. This is important in the 'Wild and Woolly West,' where students must be attracted to a Catholic School by means other than a thirst for knowledge."

Following in the footsteps of their saintly founder, Blessed Edmund Ignatius Rice, the Christian Brothers of Ireland had a holistic vision of education as an opportunity to form young Catholic men in body, mind, and spirit. Generations of "O'Dea Gentlemen" have become leaders in our community thanks to the example and dedication of the Christian Brothers.

For decades, until the mid-1970s, the Cathedral Parish ran O'Dea High School as well as the Cathedral School, taking care of the finances, upkeep of the buildings, and staff salaries. In the 1970s, in response to changing needs at O'Dea and the Cathedral, an agreement between the Christian Brothers, the Archdiocese of Seattle and St. James Cathedral parish regarding the staffing and operation of O'Dea High School was drafted and adopted. As a result, the Christian Brothers assumed responsibility for the operation, including all related expenses, of the school. Actual ownership of the school property and the Brothers' Residence remained with St. James Cathedral.

In the last few years, the role of the Christian Brothers at O'Dea has gradually lessened owing to a decline in vocations among the Christian Brothers. In 2012, Mr. Jim Walker became the first lay principal in the school's history. Earlier this year, the Congregation of Christian Brothers made the difficult decision to transfer the last three remaining brothers to other institutions of the Christian Brothers.

Happily, the Cathedral will continue to have a strong relationship to O'Dea and to the great vision of Blessed Edmund Ignatius Rice. But the brothers' departure this summer is a melancholy milestone in the history of O'Dea. They will be missed not only at the school but also here in the parish, where they have long been faithful and involved parishioners. This weekend as a parish we give thanks for the Irish Christian Brothers – for their witness of faith, their generous service, and for all the ways they have helped form "O'Dea Gentlemen" for ninety-one years.
